

GUYS' WEIRD NEW HABITS: WHY? WHY?

When seemingly normal men start wearing skinny jeans, having vasectomies at 25 and waxing (upstairs and down), you know it's time for intrepid sex reporters Em & Lo to step in and explain it all to us. Oh, now we get it!

Why Are Guys Getting Waxed There?

First came chest man-scaping, made famous in The 40-Year-Old Virgin (above). Then earlier this year, Jay-Z and P. Diddy reportedly had "brozilians"—the male equivalent of the Brazilian wax. Women everywhere let out a big now-you-know-how-it-feels whoop of joy, followed by a resounding "Huh?!" Guys are so good at being hairy—what gives? Blame the evolution of metrosexuality and the mainstreaming of porn: That hair-free aesthetic is catching on with guys, too. "My girlfriend loves it for the same reason I like it on her: It's soft and smooth and clean," says Evan, 29, a music producer in New York City. It doesn't hurt things in bed, either. "Waxing can't turn bad sex into great sex," he says, "but the extra sensitivity you both feel can make good sex even better." It's a whole new ball game. (Sorry, we couldn't resist.) Continued on page 183 ➤
