

•GROOMING•

As seasons change, so do the skin and scalp—often becoming extremely dry or oily. Enrique Ramirez, spa director at face to face in NYC (facetofacenyc.com)—which caters primarily to men—spoke with us to give his expert recommendations for managing summer skin.

“It’s very common, especially in humid climates such as New York and Chicago, and arid ones like Nevada and California, for skin to misbehave,” Ramirez explains. “A hydrating facial treatment, like our Super O2 facial, will jump-start your skin’s recovery. Most importantly, a broad-spectrum sunblock is crucial to use during the day. If you can’t visit us, ask for a hydrating facial at your local spa.”

Here are some product recommendations to get you started.
